1. It would appear from the difficulties which have arisen in two recent Canadian resettlement cases, i. e., DS-783 and DS-841, that a general review of the Canadian immigration channel might serve to render our efforts more effective in the future. Accordingly, headquarters has re-examined the spirit and letter of the KUBARK-Canadian agreement with a view toward determining what procedures will insure best results. 2. There are certain basic "rules", written or implied, which must be taken into account whenever KUBARK seeks to resettle a defector or former agent in Canada: a. It must be understood that, while the Canadian authorities will give sympathetic consideration to any KUBARK-sponsored case, there can be no assurance beforehand that a given applicant will be accepted. This fact does not, however, diminish the value of the KUBARK-Canadian agreement inasmuch as actual rejections of fully sponsored KUBARK cases should be few and far between, if at all. b. A second point to remember is the required manner of presentation of each case to the Canadian authorities. The initial approach should be made by the KUBARK representative [ ] [ ] after he has received all the necessary supporting documents and background information. Unfortunately, in the case of DS-841 headquarters permitted him to proceed on his own with the result of delay and other unfavorable complications. It has been learned that the Canadian Embassy in Cologne rejected the application of DS-841 on the simple grounds that he had not yet been in the West for a period of two years following the date of his defection. This is apparently a normal requirement for immigration to Canada. KUBARK-sponsored cases, however, need not meet the two-year residence requirement. Thus, in the case of DS-841, once we have formally presented the matter to the Canadian authorities for their consideration, there should be no further delay in effecting his final resettlement, provided that he has passed the routine physical examination. c. A third factor is the responsibility of KUBARK to insure that the resettlement case, once arrived in Canada, has sufficient funds and prior guidance to adjust to his new life without becoming a burden, financial or otherwise, to the Canadian Government. In this regard, HARVARD's efforts in preparing Canadian resettlement cases for their new environment are certainly commendable. Such guidance as careful briefing on the importance of cooperating with Canadian immigration officials, what realistically to expect in the way of living conditions and employment opportunities, as well as English language training should, of course, be continued.

d. A final item: in deference to the wishes of the Canadian Government, all resettlement cases proceeding to Canada should be required to book passage via direct route to Canadian ports of entry. 3. The comments made above are intended only as a reminder to all of us - an opportunity to pause briefly and reflect on the efficacy of the KUBARK-Canadian resettlement procedures. Needless to say, headquarters would welcome your thoughts and suggestions on this subject. We look forward toward continued improvement of our efforts in this field. E J 4 February 1959 Distribution: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>3-COS/Germany</li> <li>2 [ ]</li> <li>1 - RI/DP</li> <li>1 - EE/G</li> <li>1 - WE/6</li> <li>1 - CDC</li> </ul> 22w-6-29/1
